Meeting the challenges of Agriculture and Forestry with Commissioner Bob Odom

The beginning of fall in Louisiana means football games, hunting season, sugarcane grinding and a new craze that's sweeping the nation, the opening of cornfield mazes.

Louisiana is now home to six cornfield mazes that are located within a short drive of most of the state's major metropolitan areas.

Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom says mazes are growing in popularity as farmers diversify their business operations and look for new niche markets to keep family farms alive.

"It's hard work, but it's beneficial for small family farms struggling stay in business," Odom says. "The mazes do a lot to bring people and agriculture closer together. You're walking through a live, growing field of corn. And, it's also a source of family togetherness for visitors and earns extra income for the farmer."

Paul Courville, son of Baton Rouge farmers and maze owners Donald and Vicki Courville, says his family's core philosophy in opening a cornfield maze was to provide wholesome entertainment while earning additional income for the family's squirrel and deer corn operations.

"We went into the whole maze venture because, unfortunately, in today's society small farming is almost obsolete. It really is a struggle to keep a family supported," says Courville, currently in his third year of helping run the family's maze. "We tried it out the first year and we've been hooked since."

In fact, the Courvilles are so hooked on cornfield mazes that they expanded their business to include a second location in Lafayette.

"We saw anywhere from the range of 15,000 to 18,000 visitors last year in Baton Rouge and we're really hoping that we can push over the 20,000 visitor mark this year," Courville says. "I had a customer come in the other day and say that she had been 10 times last year."

Cornfield maze farmers do their part to support local communities as well. Many locations offer discounted admission to school groups, Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops, and religious groups. Some also offer discounts to patrons who bring in donations of canned goods.

Last year, several Louisiana mazes donated several days' profits to the United Way and other nonprofit organizations.

"These farmers are not just looking out for themselves and the bottom line," Odom notes. "They really want to give something back to the community by encouraging agriculture education, fostering family togetherness and helping children to become better stewards of their society."

Most cornfield mazes offer an agriculture educational lesson on site for groups and individuals who are interested, Odom adds.

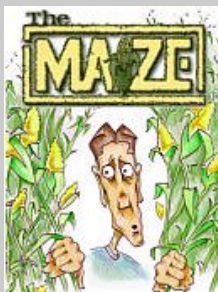

The Courvilles have set up "Agricultural Boards" to help teachers and parents educate their children while visiting the maze. "It's one of our new attractions that has interesting facts that some people possibly do not know about corn itself. We also have information about animals, like pigs and cows, that kids might not know," Courville says.

With popularity of cornfield mazes on the rise, little extras have been added to some sites making them seem like miniature amusement parks to visitors. For example, in addition to the ag board, the Courvilles have corn cannons that use compressed air to blast corn cobs at distant targets, a miniature train ride, water balloon sling shots and small-scale logic mazes. Most maze locations will also be haunted at night during the month of October for Halloween.

Paul Courville (back right), a "corn cop" at The Maize in Baton Rouge, follows maze goers Laura Pursnell, Virginia Reed and Mark Spencer as they navigate their way out of nearly two miles of winding paths cut into the Courville family's cornfield. This is the third year the Courvilles have created a maze in their Baton Rouge cornfield and this year they expanded their business to include a second maze site in Lafayette.

Ethel resident wins World Cowdog Championship

The Ford Motor Company proudly sponsored the 3rd Annual World Championship Cowdog Challenge held in Alturas, Calif., June 20 - 23. This world-class competition was put on by the Western Cowdog Association and hosted by Wilson Ranch.

Fifty of the top cattle dogs and handlers from across the United States and Canada gathered to compete for over $33,000 in prize money for the title of World Champion Cattle dog. Returning this year was the 2000 World Champion Keith Gilleon and "Spurs" of Ethel and 2001 World Champion Tim Wheeler and "Bill" of British Columbia.

There were two categories of competition. The Started Dog Class was for dogs under 30 months old and the Open Class for any age dog. On the final day Keith qualified both dogs that he had entered in the starter class and also qualified the other three in the open class.

Keith led the first two days with a Border Collie named "Mack", owned and raised by Mickey Thibodeaux of Greenwell Springs and trained and handled by Keith. On the third day "Mack" and Keith fell behind 10 points to Roy Cox of Oscar, OK.

"Mack" was the last dog to work in the finals and Keith knew what had to be done to win the "World Championship" and he and "Mack" did just that with only two seconds left on the clock. As a result of this win, Keith and "Mack" received the prestigious and coveted award of "2002 World Champion Cowdog" for dogs under 30 months of age.

In the open class on the final day, Keith with his 9 year old dog "Whip" moved up from sixth place to second place to win "2002 World Champion Cowdog." "Spurs", his 10-and-a-half-year-old Border Collie that is the 2000 World Champion and has also won many other titles in cattledog trials, ended up in eighth place, followed by "Rob" in 10th place. "Rob" is a 2-year-old that recently won Reserve Champion at the Red River Classic in Oklahoma.

Keith and his dogs, "Rockin G Whip" and "Rockin G Spurs" have also won first place in the Gulf Coast Associations Run-off for the years 1996, 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000 and 2001.

Keith said it was only by the grace of God that he was able to get all five dogs that he had entered into the finals on the fourth day.

Lagniappe Cookery... Pork, the other white meat

How does pork compare to other meats for fat, calories and cholesterol? Pork today compares favorably for fat, calories and cholesterol with many other meats and poultry. Many cuts of pork are as lean or leaner than chicken. Any cuts from the loin - like pork chops and pork roast - are leaner than skinless chicken thigh, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture data. Pork steaks or roasts from the leg ("fresh ham") are also lean choices.

Champagne Chops
*8 boneless port center loin chops, about ½ inch thick
2 tablespoons flour
*1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash white pepper
1 teaspoon butter, melted
1 teaspoon olive oil
3/4 cup champagne
1/4 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1/2 cup heavy cream
Combine flour, salt and pepper. Lightly dredge chops in flour mixture. Heat oil and butter over medium-high heat in nonstick skillet; add chops and brown about 2 minutes on each side. Lower heat to medium-low and add champagne; cook about 4-5 minutes. Remove chops, set aside and keep warm. Add mushrooms and cream to skillet; cook over low heat, stirring constantly, just until thickened. Return chops to pan, cook just to reheat and serve immediately. Serves 4.

Fettuccine with Garden Herb Sauce
*2 lbs. pork shoulder blade steaks
*1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 can (14 1/2 oz.) diced, peeled tomatoes
1 can (15 oz.) tomato sauce
*1 medium onion, quartered, sliced
2 cloves garlic, minced
*1 1/2 teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon chopped fresh

oregano leaves
1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil leaves
*1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
1 package (8 oz.) fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 1/2 cups fettuccine or rigatoni, cooked and drained
Heat oil in a large skillet. Brown pork steaks over medium-high heat; pour off drippings. Add remaining ingredients except parsley, mushrooms and fettuccine. Cover; simmer 1 - 1½ hours, until pork is very tender. Remove meat from sauce; cut into small pieces. Add meat, parsley and mushrooms to sauce. Cook and stir over medium heat 5 minutes. Serve sauce over hot fettuccine.

Florentine Ham Casserole
*2 cups fully-cooked ham, cut into thin strips
1 10 ounce package frozen chopped spinach
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
*1/4 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1/4 cup butter or margarine
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
*1 cup milk
*2 eggs, beaten
1/8 teaspoon ground oregano

1/8 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 cup of shredded Mozzarella cheese (2 ounces)
Cook frozen spinach according to package directions; drain well. Set aside. In a small saucepan, cook mushrooms, onion and garlic in hot butter until tender but not brown. Stir in flour and milk. Cook and stir over medium-low heat 4-5 minutes or until thickened and bubbly. Gradually stir about half of the hot mixture into beaten eggs; return all to saucepan. Stir in ground oregano, pepper and nutmeg. Cook and stir 2-3 minutes more. Stir in spinach and ham. Turn mixture into 1½ quart casserole; sprinkle shredded mozzarella cheese atop. Bake in a 350°F oven for 30 minutes or until heated through. Serves 4.

BLT & G Wrap
4 8-inch flour tortillas
1/2 cup chunky salsa
*12 slices crispy cooked bacon
4 ounces cream cheese spread
1 cup shredded iceburg lettuce
1/2 cup guacamole
Spread each tortilla on one side with some cream cheese; top with some salsa and shredded lettuce and spread evenly. Place 3 slices bacon on each tortilla; top with some guacamole and roll up to serve immediately. Serves 4.
